Biography

Yuliza manages partnerships and project operations for Trailhead's community engagement research projects supporting their start-up, development, and ongoing sustained structures. Growing up in Northern Colorado, Yuliza volunteered with local organizations that addressed social determinants of health. Working with underserved populations, she developed a passion for making a difference in the lives of others. After graduating from the University of Northern Colorado with a Bachelor of Science in Human Services, she worked with North Colorado Health Alliance before moving to the Denver area and joining the Trailhead team. In her free time, Yuliza enjoys traveling – especially to places with a warm sandy beach – and spending time with her family.
