

COLORADO SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH ♦♦ SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATION

Albino Scholarship

The Judith Albino Diversity Scholarship Fund (Albino Scholarship) is intended to provide student scholarship support to promote diversity within the School, with a preference for supporting students who are members of federally recognized Indian tribes. The Albino Scholarship supports students studying public health or a related health field and whose goals include research and/or practice with emphasis on the integration of behavioral, cultural, and physical aspects of health and illness. The Albino Scholarship provides for ColoradoSPH students, or upon approval non--ColoradoSPH students, who contribute to diversity in the School community, through their backgrounds and experiences, and who have demonstrated financial need in accordance with the following guidelines. The ColoradoSPH definition of diversity embraces: age, race, gender, disability, ethnicity, nationality, religious beliefs, sexual orientation, political beliefs, socio-economic status, and geographical background.

Guidelines:

- a. Recipients need not be Colorado residents; and
- b. Applicants shall be required to submit a brief essay describing how their public health studies might serve a diverse population. See detailed instructions below.

Additional eligibility requirements include:

- Admission to a Colorado School of Public Health degree program or by invitation to University of Colorado Denver students enrolled in either the undergraduate public health major or other approved health related program.
- U.S. citizen, permanent resident, or international student in compliance with HB1023 (see below).
- Recipients shall be selected based on financial need and strength of application to ColoradoSPH academic program.
- Preference shall be given to students who are members of federally recognized Indian tribe.
- Preference will be given to students studying public health.
